storyfront

+254 769 968 444 · storyfront.studio@gmail.com
Remote · Kenya · storyfront-studio.github.io

STORYFRONT WEBSITE CHECK

Bustani Gardens: your website, checked.

bustanigardens.example (fictional)

Sample report · the business, website and findings below are fictional, to show what a Storyfront Website Check looks like.

CHECKED	OVERALL	WORKS PROPERLY ON PHONES	WAYS TO BOOK ONLINE
13 October 2026	50 / 100	No	None working

Bustani Gardens has a real website, which many venues don't. But it was built for laptops, and most couples look for venues on their phones. On a phone the site shrinks to a tiny desktop page, the Book Now button goes nowhere, and there are no prices or packages, so the people most ready to book have no easy way to do it.

1 At a glance

AREA	RATING	IN ONE LINE
First impression on a phone	Fix first	The site isn't set up for phones.
Turning visitors into bookings	Fix first	The Book Now button doesn't lead anywhere.
Prices and packages	Needs work	There are no prices or packages anywhere on the site.
Showing up on Google	Needs work	The page title is just "Home" and there's no search description, so Google shows "Home" in search results and writes its own summary.
Trust and freshness	Needs work	The footer still says © 2019.
Speed	Good	The site is light and loads quickly, even on a phone connection.

Broken links	1 (Packages page)
Google search title	"Home"

2 What I found, area by area

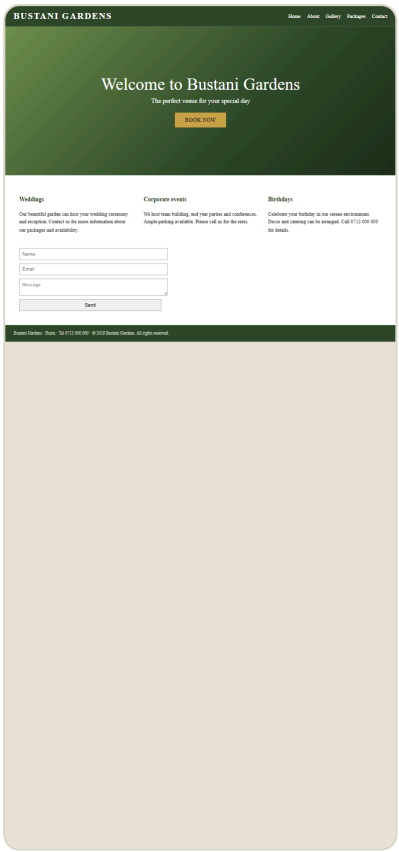

First impression on a phone

Fix first

What I found. The site isn't set up for phones. A phone shows the whole laptop page shrunk to fit its screen, so the text is about a third of its normal size and the menu links are too small to tap comfortably.

Why it matters. Most people searching for a wedding or event venue do it on their phone. If the first thing they see is tiny text they have to pinch and zoom, many go back to Google and open the next venue.

The fix. Rebuild the layout so it adapts to phones: readable text, one column, large buttons. This is a structural change, not a quick setting.

The homepage as a phone sees it.

Turning visitors into bookings

Fix first

What I found. The Book Now button doesn't lead anywhere. There's no WhatsApp button, and the phone number is plain text that can't be tapped to call. The only way to enquire is a basic form, with no sign of where messages go or how fast you reply.

Why it matters. A couple who has decided they like your venue should be able to ask about their date in one tap. Every extra step (copying a number, guessing whether a form works) loses enquiries you'll never know about.

The fix. Make Book Now open WhatsApp with a ready-written message (date, guest numbers, type of event), and make every phone number tap-to-call.

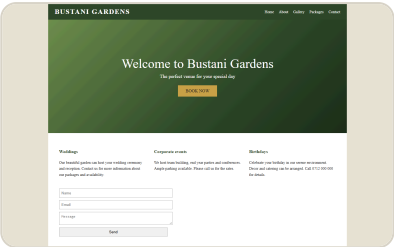

Prices and packages

Needs work

What I found. There are no prices or packages anywhere on the site. Each section says to contact you or call for rates, and the Packages link in the menu leads to a page that doesn't exist.

Why it matters. Couples shortlist venues by budget. Without even a starting price, many will skip you for a venue that shows one, and the rest will send the same "how much?" message you answer every day.

The fix. Add a packages page with what's included and a "from" price for each, and fix or remove the broken Packages link.

The homepage on a laptop: every section says "contact us".

Showing up on Google

Needs work

What I found. The page title is just "Home" and there's no search description, so Google shows "Home" in search results and writes its own summary.

Why it matters. The title is the first thing people read on Google. "Home" tells them nothing; "Bustani Gardens · Wedding & Events Venue in Ruiru" tells them exactly what you are and where.

The fix. Give every page a clear title and a one-line description with what you offer and your area.

Trust and freshness

Needs work

What I found. The footer still says © 2019. There are no photos of real events on the homepage and no reviews, so nothing shows the venue is busy and well-loved today.

Why it matters. An old date makes people wonder whether you're still operating. Real photos and reviews from recent couples are what turn "looks nice" into "let's book a visit".

The fix. Update the year, add a gallery of real events, and show your Google rating with two or three recent reviews.

Speed

Good

What I found. The site is light and loads quickly, even on a phone connection.

Why it matters. A slow site loses visitors before they see anything, so this is one thing already working in your favour.

The fix. Keep it that way: when you add event photos, compress them first.

3 Your top 5 fixes

In order of what costs you the most customers.

1. Make the site work properly on phones (readable text, one column, big buttons).
2. Turn Book Now into a WhatsApp enquiry with the date, guest numbers and event type already written.
3. Make every phone number tap-to-call.
4. Add a packages page with "from" prices, and fix the broken Packages link.
5. Give the homepage a proper Google title and description, and update the 2019 copyright.

4 What you can do yourself today

- Add your packages and "from" prices to your Google listing (Edit services). It's free and shows on Google Maps.
- Ask your last five happy couples for a Google review, with a direct link to make it easy.
- Put your WhatsApp number in your Google listing and your Instagram bio, so phone users can reach you in one tap.

5 What next

> Your KES 5,000 counts toward the next step.
>
> Book the Fix Pack or a Storyfront website by 12 November 2026 and the full KES 5,000 you paid for this check comes off the price.

START FRESH

A Storyfront website

From KES 40,000, less your KES 5,000 credit

A new site built around how your customers book, with every issue in this report solved from the start.

FIX MY CURRENT SITE

Fix Pack

KES 10,000, or KES 5,000 after your credit

I make the top 5 fixes above on your current site within a week. You give me access; nothing else changes.

FIX YOUR GOOGLE LISTING

Google listing setup

KES 3,500

Hours, services with prices, photos, description and links on your Google listing, set up properly.

This check covers what any customer can see publicly, as of 13 October 2026. I didn't log in to any of your accounts.
Questions about anything in here? WhatsApp +254 769 968 444.
Ignatius Kimeu, Storyfront